CORRUPTION FUNDS .- The evidence before the Congressional Committee show that Mr. Wolcott, of the firm of Gardner, Wolcott & Co., of Boston, and formerv in the employ of Lawrence, Stone & Co., received $58.000 in cash to bribe Congress. The firm has failed and Mr. Wolcott denies before the Committee that he used the money directly or indirectly to bribe members IS NOW OPEN, AND THE SUBSCRIBER SOLICITS of Congress. The creditors of Lawrence, Stone & Co., represented at Washington by Mr. E. F. Butler, say, if you did not use our funds for the special purpose for which they were entrusted to you, where are they ?-Give them back. Mr. Wolcott remains in Jail, apparently seeking some loophole by which he may keep the money and escape punishment. The quibble in the matter seems to be that employing lobby men, whose cloquence can enlighten and instruct benighted members and teach them the proper bearing of a question, is not called bribing members of Congress. Mr. Wolcott denies that he directly or indirectly gave money for votes to members of Congress, but he does not deny that he spent the money to influence the passage of the bill, if, indeed, he spent it at all. This indirect mode of influencing the passage of a bill has long been practised. It is known that the Collins line of steamers, after the receipt of large sums of money from the Government, has been discontinued as unprofitable. It is also currently reported that of $800,000 received by the Collins line from the Government, three-fourths, or $600,000, was spent at Washington to procure the passage of the allowance. This matter requires investigation, as well as that of the Lawrence bribery fund, and the mode in which the money is spent, whether in direct payments to the members, or in employing lobby men to "instruct" them, after they have been fed fron the fund. The whole matter should be probed to the bottom, and Congress discover whether they are actually made the tools for extracting money out of the pockets of the public into of Equity to be held for Duplin County, at the Court House in Kenansville, on the fourth Monday of March next, and there and there plead argument of March next, and the famous "Gardner claim." Congress voted nearly $500,000 to pay it; of this $400,000 went into the pockets of three or four persons, among them, Mr. Corwin, Secretary of the Treasury, and three gentlemen said they passed the claim because they believed it to have been an honest one. If that was so, what is the result? Why, a man with a claim on the Government, which all the high officers believe to be just, cannot get his money without paying away four-fifths of it to "influential United States Economist.

The Religious Revival-Conversion of a Fighter. The New York Tribune says :

The celebrated Orville Gardner familiarly called Awful Gardner," prize fighter and trainer of pugilists, has been recently brought under the influence of the general revival. He is now at a small town in the vicinity of New York, where his brother was recently converted, and where he himself had been led seriously to consider the subject of religion. He attended an inquiry meeting held in a Methodist church, and to the surprise and pleasure of the better class of his friends, requested the prayers of the congregation-a request which on three different occasions he repeated. Having some unimportant business to do in this city, a friend asked him if he would " jump into the cars and go down and attend to it ?" He replied, "I have more important business to attend to first, and I shall not go training three men for a prize fight. On being asked if he would give them further lessons, he replied that "he would go to them soon but on a different errand from that of boxing and training," and he " would try to persuade them to give up their fighting, to reform their

In the language of Wall street, there is a glut in the money market. The banks cannot obtain enough good paper to meet their ability to discount, and the private discounting houses are puzzeled to find profitable employment for their funds. The money glut is even greater in London than here; and at last dates, first-class bills were readily negotiated at one half of one per cent discount. This state of the money market gives animation to the stock market, but it indicates an unhealthy condition of business. The capital which should be flowing through all arteries of trade, commerce, and industry, giving health and activity to business enterprise, and employment to labor, has been drawn back into the great financial centres until its accumulation becomes

But this condition of things, the natural result of the panic, cannot long continue, and when this accumulated capital begins to circulate again freely through all the channels of trade and industry, new life and new vigor will be imparted to business enterprise, and labor will

The engine driver, on approaching, saw the signal, and stopped the train, immediately two men sprang upon him, and secured him, while their confederates leisurely opened the doors of the railway carriages, and rifled the pockets of all within, without the slightest opposition. After this the train was allowed to continue its route.
